CAREER MAP EVALUATION

Go back through your map. Using three different colors, mark the jobs that you're sure you don't want to do in one color (maybe red), the jobs that you're very interested in in another color (maybe green), and the jobs that you don't know enough about to evaluate well in another color (maybe yellow).

As you mark careers in red, make some notes here on this page. Why don't you want to pursue this career path? Is there a situation or framework in which you'd consider this career path? What tasks/aspects of the job turn you off? Are there conditions in which you'd consider this career path further?

CAREER MAP EVALUATION

Sort the careers you've marked in yellow below. If you're unable to imagine a day at work, keep an open mind and consider looking into the career path a bit more.

Reflections

Now that you've gone through your career map, reflect on the following.

1. What patterns can you find in the careers that you've marked in red (uninterested)? Is there something that each of these careers has in common? What motivates you to decide against a career path?
2. What patterns can you find in the careers that you're interested in? What attracts you about these career paths?
3. Think about the questions you have for the careers you've marked in green and yellow. When you reflect on the patterns you found in the careers you're interested in and the careers you're not attracted to, what other questions come to mind? Is there anything else you'd like to find out?
4. How has the search for career paths helped you to have a better idea of what's out there? What possibilities do you see now that weren't visible to you before?
